

POLITICAL HANGOVER

Well I wonder how some Democrats in Congress and the President feel this day after the Governors of New Jersey and Virginia both became Republican Governors. The Democrat in New Jersey spent millions of His personal money to get defeated. He was sure to be reelected because the President spent so much time campaigning for Him, even on Sunday. The Republican in Virginia pretty well had His won early because Obama did not spend much time in His state to help Him. Obama has such an ego that He knows when He has it lost for a candidate. Pore ole Obama never worked in open Government but less than two years as a Chicago placed United States Senator, does not believe in the way our government is supposed to operate but worse still has not the faintest idea how to change it. He never supervised any group larger than His Senate office staff and had not the faintest notion of what to do with the Cabinet He appointed. So goes out and appoints a bunch of left wing radicals to advise Him. He had better appoint them because they helped the Acorn folks and the SEIU Union crooks to get ole Obama elected.

Well the young immature Pres. has had weeks to decide what to do about sending some more troops oversea to fight a war that started about nine years ago. Well folks for an ego ridden young fellow that has never even served in a uniform of a group that wears a uniform even a peaceful one what can we expect. A man elected because of racism (remember blacks voted for Him because He was black and some whites because they wanted to vote for and help elect the first black President). That was enough votes to have elected good ole George our first President and everybody that could, voted for him, remember the cherry tree incident? ALL I CAN DO IS PRAY FOR THE TROOPS THAT HAVE TO SERVE UNDER A PRESIDENT THAT PUTS POLITICS BEFORE THE WAR.