

WHAT-HUH-I DON'T BELIEVE IT. DO YOU ALL?

This writing will be a special article and will be a continued article due to the length of the article. Each will be labeled part one, two, etc..

I am not a media person or a Genetics although I had one course in College that had a lot of study about Chromosomes and Genes. I am not a Journalist although I had one course in Journalism in College; I had a course in Race Relations and bunch of other general courses while striving for a B.S. degree in H&PE finishing up in Jan. 1952. I spent 35 years “bootlegging” education holding about every job from Coaching –teaching through principal starting a private school and then as Supervisor of many programs back in the public area.

I heard a Black Preacher the pastor of the largest Black Church in San Francisco Ca. say on National TV. The reasons Obama was elected President, was first, some white people wanted to be the first to help elect a Black Man to the high office. I think that was a racist position and they voted wrong because Obama is not a Black man. Second, about 98% of the dark skinned people (Negroes) voted for Him because He was of their same color. That is racist for sure. Third, dyed in the wool Democrats voted for Him because he was a Democrat. That is prejudiced and racism is a form of prejudice. I will not go into what people of President Obamas skin color was called down here in the South by the elders when I was growing up. Well enuff said about that.

What happened to the News Media?

A few wonderments; I wonder why schools stopped requirements in P.E. from grade one through twelve? I believe that would help the fat children problem. Wonder why little ole pistol tail gals on TV have all the answers. Maybe the media and moneymaking folks do not want a quick answer or any answer at all. How about parent clubs and voters start yelling for the schools to do their part and the parents will do their part to stop the fat student problem.

Wonder why people do not want to follow the law. Elected officials “swear by” the constitution then do not follow it. Why do everyone look for ways to evade the law? Example; speed devices to warn them when law enforcement is up the road so they can adjust their speed down. Bootleggers and dope pushers or sellers or however they might be classified.
