

WHERE CAN YOU GET NEWS?

FIRST LET ME WRITE SOME THINGS I KNOW IS THE TRUTH. I AM NOT A JOURNALIST. I HAD ONE THREE HOUR COURSE IN JOURNALISM WHILE IN COLLEGE A LONG TIME AGO. BUT MOST OF WHAT I WRITE ABOUT IS EVIDENT BY COMPARISON OF NEWS PAPERS THAT CAN BE FOUND IN PUBLIC LIBRARIES OR ON FILE AT THE NEWS PAPERS.

There are several sources of news. First there is gossip and secondly there is radio. Third there are the Daily News Papers and Weekly News Papers and of course there is Television. All are protected by the constitution under the freedom of speech section. Yes, even gossip is protected. Of course if a person or company gives or uses false statements and can be proven then they may be in trouble in violation of the constitution. Television is most used now because most written material as magazines have made their print small to save money (oops, I almost forgot them).

Cable news and Satellite transmission of programs have more or less changed news transmission. All of the satellite stations except two are part of a regular network, an example being MSNBC a part of NBC. CNN AND FOX NEWS are the exception. However CNN is owned partly by the same parent as Time Magazine and has the same Editorial and news policies as the parent companies dictate. FOX NEWS is the only news source that gives the news and lets the persons watching make up their mind about how they believe the news should be interpreted. Their slogan is "We report, you decide".

Local gossip is available when people call on the phone or meet as a group with no defined mission. Daily News Papers are a joke or some thing that is far removed from a paper of about fifteen years ago. Most local News Papers are about the same, a lot of advertisements and a few newsworthy stories.

Why am I writing all this mess? You all have sense enough to have either paid attention to what I am writing or already know more about it than I.
